RUSD picks secondary principals

By BARBARA ERICKSON

Four new secondary school principal, three at junior high schools and one at a senior high, will take over their posts in Richmond Unified at the end of this academic year.

The school board last week made 15 administrative appointments, including 12 principals, vice principals and deans, and three central administrators.

Superintendent's aide David Taylor said Don Evans, vice principal at De Anza High School will become principal there next year, replacing Frank Granucci. Granucci, who asked to be transferred to a junior high school, will take over at Pinole Junior High.

At Helms Junior High Jim Reno will replace Principal John Scharetg, who is retiring. Reno has been vice principal at Adams.

The new principal at Downer Junior High will be Sylvester Greenwood, now Portola vice principal, and at Juan Crespi Junior High George Crews, now vice principal at the site, will replace Joseph Stenson, who is retiring.

Other assignments are: Mary Coe, dean at Pinole Valley, to be vice principal at Crespi; Linda Lester, Richmond High teacher, to be women's

Chuck E. gets city ok

Kirby's fans lose their bid to keep pizza out

By JIM GRODNIK

EL CERRITO —The El Cerrito City Council, before approximately 300 emotional people in the El Cerrito Fire Station Monday night, approved Pizza Time Theatre's application for a permit to open a Chuck E. Cheese Restaurant in El Cerrito Plaza.

However, a stipulation requiring 50 square feet of space for each game may keep Chuck E. Cheese from moving in. David Wheeler, real estate director for Pizza Time Theatres, said, "If they mean 50 square feet of space for every video game, we're dead."

Wheeler said if the condition meant 50 square feet alloted for every game in the restaurant, then Chuck E. Cheese would accept the condition and move in. He said that if the video games had to be separated from one another by that distance the operation would be unprofitable.

Anticipating the parade of speakers that were to speak in support of Kirby's, the popular restaurant that will be replaced by Chuck E. Cheese, Mayor Jean Siri opened the meeting by saying, "The issue is not Kirby's, it's the permit for the Pizza Time Theatre."

Siri voted, along with Council members Howard Abelson, Richard Spellmann, and Margaret Collins, to grant the permit. Council member James E. Allen Jr. voted no.

Wheeler spoke in favor of granting the permit. He was interrupted by boos from the audience of predominately senior citizens when he said the typical child that visits a Pizza Time restaurant is between six and nine years old. He said Chuck E. Cheese restaurants provide wholesome family entertainment.

Kirby's restaurant is 24 years old, and serves approximately 1300 people a day, many of whom are of retirement age.

It has a large following of senior citizens and provides them with discount prices. Kirby's also has menus in Braille, and is used by students from a nearby training center for the blind.

Racism trial investigates Albany police

By JUDY POLUMBAUM

ALBANY — A former Albany police officer who claims he was the victim of racial discrimination testified last week that racially hurting messages sent to him by other officers made him feel "humiliated" and "subhuman."

Harold Evans, whose suit against the city and police department is now being tried in Alameda County Superior Court, contradicted earlier testimony by an Albany police sergeant that the messages were all in fun and that Evans himself had been an active and willing participant in the joking.

Sgt. Arthur Clemons had acknowledged authorship of several notes to Evans containing racial slurs and said the two often exchanged such notes while working on the same shift as patrolmen — although Clemons had not saved any of those he received.

But Evans denied that he wrote any such notes to fellow officers, although he acknowledged he sometimes called them names. "I referred to Sgt. Clemons as a redneck when I was angry with him on two occasions," he said.

Evans also contradicted Clemons' claim that the two men were good friends, saying that his relationship with Clemons amounted to a "two" on a scale of one to ten. "A two is someone that you just work with, you have to work with; you don't have to like the person," he said.

Evans recalled that once, before giving Clemons a lift home after work, the two had gone to a bar. "The first thing he (Clemons) yelled was, 'No coons allowed,' or some garbage like that," Evans said. He said he had not gone drinking with Clemons again.

Evans, now a resident of Phoenix, Arizona, worked in Albany during 1974-78. The only black officer ever hired by the Albany Police Department, he was fired after he and the city discovered he had diabetes.

His suit, besides alleging racial dis-

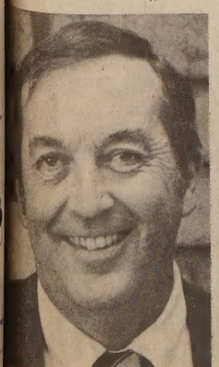
Albany has the budget blues

City may lose some property tax revenue

By JUDY POLUMBAUM

ALBANY — Albany's chief administrator last week gave the City Council a grim picture of city finances for the coming fiscal year, and complained that state and county manipulation of property tax revenues are playing havoc with local budgets.

City Administrative Officer William Haden, leading the council through a day-long workshop on a proposed fiscal 1983-84 budget Saturday, said that Proposition 13 and developments stemming from that tax-slashing initiative have effectively deprived local governments of a say in the allocation of property taxes. "The issue of local control is dead," he declared.



William Haden

Haden said Albany and some 50 other cities around the state now face the prospect of losing sizeable chunks of property tax revenue as the result of a Los Angeles County legal opinion concerning pension costs. The opinion says cities which applied part of their property tax revenue to retirement costs in the past should have levied a separate "override tax" instead.

Albany, which has infused its ailing pension plan with extra tax money for several years, did not levy a special tax until last year, after a court decision clarified that cities had the right to raise such a tax to meet unfunded pension obligations.

The implication of the Los Angeles County opinion, Haden said, is that counties may reduce the affected localities' share of property taxes and might even demand retroactive repayment.

He pointed out that counties manage the calculation and distribution of property taxes under the direction of the state, and Albany presently gets roughly 14 percent of one percent of its assessed value.

Alameda County does not plan to apply the opinion retroactively, but is considering cutting Albany's property tax allocation, Haden said.

The county could hold back as little as zero and as much as $200,000 — or nearly two-thirds — of the city's an-

Schools

School closings in doubt

By MADELEINE VON LAUE

School district officials in Berkeley say the two suits filed by parents to block the closing of their schools will not stop the district from making plans to implement school closings in the fall.

The district has already sent lists of incoming students to the 10 elementary schools that will remain open next fall, and teacher assignments will be made this week. Administrators said, however, that parents and teachers will not be officially notified until after a hearing on the suits on June 10.

The district is under a temporary court order not to take further steps to close John Muir School, such as reassigning students and staff, after parents filed suit last week claiming that students and parents would suffer "immediate and irreparable harm" if their school were closed.

The school district has agreed to abide by the same restrictions regarding Hillside, another of the four schools slated for closing, after parents filed a suit similar to John Muir's. The two suits are scheduled to be heard at the same time.

The order, however, allows the district to make contingency plans in the event the suits are not successful and the schools are closed. Lou Zlokovich, assistant to the superintendent, said all the planning documents are labeled "contingency plans."

Although the restraining order applies only to John Muir and Hillside, students from those two schools will be dispersed into most of the remaining primary schools, and planning for those schools is also affected. Final planning may be further delayed beyond June 10 if the court decides to issue a preliminary injunction blocking the board's action.

Pat Jackson, John Muir's PTA president who is actively involved in the fight to save her school, said, that parent organizations that have been told they can't organize welcoming activities for new students are being intimidated.

"The administration has no legal authority over parent groups," she said. "They operate independently of the schools or the administration."

Jackson also said she was "shocked" to find that the district had delivered packing boxes and mailing labels for student notification to all the schools, even John Muir.

Stephen Lustig, board president, had no comment on the new suit, except to express concern that a delay in student and staff relocation could affect next year's programs.

Board members have been advised by their lawyers not to discuss the legal actions. Member Barbara Lubin, however, defended the decision to close schools.

"One would think there was no studying, no soul searching," she said. "People act as though it was done off

1983 'Stroll' planned

ALBANY — The Board of Dirctors of the Solano Avenue Association has called a special business meeting to discuss the budget for the 1983 Solano Stroll to be held September 25, a Sunday afternoon.

Anyone interested in the Stroll or the Association is invited to attend the meeting at 8:30 a.m., on Thursday, June 9, in the lobby of Sumitomo Bank, Solano and Santa Fe avenues.

Volunteers from the community are encouraged to participate. Some of the committees still recruiting members include the parade and entertaiment commitees and the t-shirt, poster and directory committees.

ticipated property tax revenues for the coming year, and meanwhile the city is up in the air with regard to the exact amount.

"We had it all figured out with the ground rules last week, and the ground rules have changed, and they'll probably change again next week," Haden said. "There are no clearcut answers at this point."

Haden presented what he characterized as a "hold-the-line" budget for 1983-84, predicated upon a slight upturn in the economy.

It entails no new programs, much deferred maintenance, a minimum of new purchases and no pay raises for city employees.

The proposed budget anticipates total revenues of $4,224,872 and total expenditures of $4,849,510 — in other words, more going out than coming in.

As a result, the city's reserve funds, estimated at $1,142,607 as of July 1 this year, should sink to an estimated $628,969 by July 1 next year.

The reserves in the general fund, the city's main operating budget, are expected to shrink from $108,241 to $23,618 in that period — a prospect which Mayor Ruth Ganong later called "scary."

"It's just not good management to let us get down so far," Ganong said.

Haden called the revenue projections "conservative," saying they could turn out to be higher, depending in part on the economy.

Albany's property tax revenue, which amounted to an estimated $310,858 in fiscal 1982-83, is projected to rise three percent to an estimated $357,286 — barring no meddling by the county.

The proposed budget also entails another special pension tax, like the one the council imposed last summer, amounting to $312,000.

The budget anticipates that sales tax revenue, some $690,000 in the current fiscal year, will rise two percent, and an additional $36,000 generated by the new Albany Ford will bring the total to $741,000.

Tax revenue from Golden Gate Fields is projected to stay the same at $585,000. Revenue from the utility users tax should rise from $356,500 to $374,300, although the city's utility costs are expected to go up as well, and gas tax revenue should increase from $194,800 to $222,676.

The budget includes funds to fill the position of assistant fire chief — $35,808 plus fringe benefits — which was left vacant during the current fiscal year.

New purchases include two new patrol cars plus repayment of money borrowed from a police reserve fund to buy a third car which replaced one totalled in an accident in April; $1,600 worth of testing and other equipment for the Fire Department; and a $3,500 hydrant at Pond[illegible] lyn streets.

crimination on the job, claims his dismissal was unjustified, but the city maintains it was legitimate because he had failed to obey an order from a superior officer to produce medical evidence that he was fit for patrol duty.

Under questioning by one of his attorneys, Jacqueline Lum, Evans said last week he had felt "hurt... angry and... totally humiliated" at finding derogatory messages on his locker in the police station.

He identified several pictures he had found hanging on his locker, including a newspaper photo of a baby gorilla with the words "proof of Darwin's theory" scrawled on it, a magazine photo of an old black man with the words "just another example of a true black stud," and cartoon strips which depicted black people as monkey-like creatures.

Evans described the material as "offensive" and "disgusting." He said finding the gorilla photo on his locker made him feel "like I was subhuman, some animal."

He characterized as "degrading" a satirical memo he had found on his locker, written under a Detroit Police Department letterhead and purporting to be an application for a police sergeants' exam, which mocked affirmative action with such statements as, "You have the right to refuse to take this test and be promoted anyway" and "Wrong answers will not affect score."

Evans estimated that he had received 25-35 notes during 1974-77, and said he had destroyed some of them.

He also suggested that Police Chief James Simmons was aware of the racial jokes, saying Clemons had once handed him a note in the hallway with the chief present.

Simmons had testified earlier that he had no knowledge of the matter until it came up at a staff meeting in mid-1977.

Evans also maintained that he had been disciplined excessively for infractions of departmental rules.

He related several occasions on which he had been suspended without pay. Once, he said, his dog [illegible] his phone off the hook, [illegible] overslept and been more [illegible] hours late for the graveyard [illegible] he had been docked seven [illegible] four hours' pay.

Health care is more than just not being sick

Rockridge Healthplan opens

CHARLES PELTON

ANY — The staff of Rockridge Healthplan say they believe health care should be community-oriented, with emphasis on individual, personalized attention.

This February the small health maintenance organization (HMO) moved into renovated offices at San Pablo Ave., the of a former unfinished furniture store.

According to Rockridge's marketing director, Jerry Cole, the was developed to serve Rockridge Healthplan members who live in northern Alameda and southern Contra Costa counties. It has also become the new administrative headquarters for the small East Bay organization.

"Rockridge's reason for existence," Cole said, "is that there are a large number of people in the world — particularly in the East Bay — who want comprehensive health care, but don't want to be part of a large, impersonal, bureaucratic health care system."

The architectural design of the facility is as non-traditional as its approach. Patients wait for appointments in a large, sky-lit waiting room. Physicians work in "provider pods" which include the doctor's office and several examining rooms.

"I believe that same-day appointments and same-day health care lead to a more personalized atmosphere," Dr. Jeffrey Mendell, Albany Rockridge's full-time physician, said.

"The largest difference between Kaiser and Rockridge is that we are on the family practice model," he said. "We make every attempt to connect the patient and practitioner."

This means patients choose their physicians or practitioners from a small "Practitioner Profile" booklet. When a patient needs to see a doctor or other practitioner the plan makes every effort to have them visit with the health profesional they have already chosen.

Rockridge also has its own pharmacy — including a home-visit/clinical pharmacy program, an optometry area and an on-site child care area.

"It's the scale of the place that makes a huge difference," Cole said. "The sense here is that your health care is provided by human beings."

Rockridge's Albany office counts 3,200 members. There are only 20,000 members around the Bay Area, most of whom go to Rockridge's original north Oakland facility. Kaiser, by comparison, has 1.8 million members.

Even though Rockridge also has a clinic in Alameda and is planning to open three new clinics in San Francisco, it has no plans to expand indefinitely.

"We'll never grow like Kaiser," executive director Saul Feldman said. "(What matters) is the way you grow.

"We'd like to be large enough to achieve the kinds of economies of scale (to provide cost-effective health care), but not so large that it hurts."

Cole anticipates that membership will grow by about 1,500 a year in Albany to an approximate 10,000 member maximum. Nearly 95 percent of the organization's members have joined through their companies' employee benefits programs.

The plan emphasizes primary care. Specialists are arranged if they are needed. Rockridge has no hospital. Patients who need hospitalization are sent either to Merritt or Children's Hospitals in Oakland.

Feldman is suspicious of HMOs that operate their own hospitals: "There's a great tendency to keep hospital beds filled, even when it isn't necessarily in the patient's interest," he said.

Rockridge emphasizes preventive medicine in both patient visits and through an ongoing series of courses on such subjects as "Oh, My Aching Back," "Stress and Black Adults" and "Coming Back: An Exercise Program."

As an HMO, Rockridge is a cross between a regular medical insurer, such as Blue Cross, and a provider of care. An insurer, however, provides no preventive consulting: "We'd like people to come in for 'well' visits as well," Cole said.

Rockridge was started in 1974 by a group associated with the Civic Hospital in Oakland to provide care for MediCal patients. Its name derives from the area in Oakland where it began.

In 1978 Rockridge qualified as a health maintenance organization under the federal HMO Act of 1973. This enabled the plan to contract with employer groups as a providers of health care for their employees. Presently, several govermental agencies, the Bank of America, Safeway, Crocker Bank and Del Monte all offer Rockridge as one alternative health care benefit.

Rockridge remains one of the few HMO's in the area which accepts Medi-Cal. According to Mendell, it remains committed to serving "the underserved in the community, including the elderly, working and unemployed people.

"We're trying to reach out to people who have never had (health maintenance and preventetive medicine) before," he said.

"Albany felt right to us," Cole said as he explained why Rockridge decided to locate here.

"This area fit our sense of who likes Rockridge — who is attracted to it. There's a curious mix of people who are attracted to the organization, people for whom health care is more than going to the doctor when you're sick."

Now you can pay Muni court fines with a credit card

Even traffic violators will be able to improve their credit rating through the wonders of the credit card, thanks to a new system being put into effect by the Berkeley-Albany Municipal Court.

Beginning last week, persons tagged with tickets issued in Berkeley, Albany or on the UC-Berkeley campus can charge the bill to a VISA or Master Card account.

All they'll have to do is phone a toll-free Western Union number. An operator will take the information necessary to identify the court case or citations and verify the card's credit line. Upon approval, Western Union will send payment to the court.

While several courts outside Alameda County are using the system, according to Western Union sources, the Berkeley-Albany court is the first in this jurisdiction to put it into operation.

Western Union charges a fee to the card holder based on the amount of the payment due the court. The minimum (covering fines or other payments up to $100) is $6. The fee increases by $2 or $3 per hundred. The fee for $900 to $1000 is $26. Above that it's $3 per $100.

Since Western Union operators are available on a 24-hour basis, payments to the court generally will be made the day after verification of funds. Payments due at the Parking Violations Bureau may also be charged in this manner.

According to court officials, advantages of the system are that it provides (1) a new payment alternative for people unable to make a large payment immediately or in a single time and (2) a quick and convenient means of payment by persons who live out of state or are unable to get in the office soon enough to avoid increased costs and issuance of a warrant.

"Critical to the success of the program," says Court Administrator Charles McCain, "is that users of the system have information that identifies their case and have it ready to give the Western Union operators.

"Of most importance," he added, "are case or docket number or citation number and court or due date. Information must be correct to ensure proper application of payments."

Learning to cook

Teaching people to cook is great fun. If it weren't, I wouldn't do it as a vocation. Whether my students are high-schoolers or adults, my approach is the same and has been for years.

When presenting a lesson or a particular food, I usually demonstrate or instruct a group of cooks in the kitchen. Of course, we end up with a tangible (and hopefully edible!) product. But during the process which leads to this ultimate goal, I try to make this point clear: Following a recipe only proves that you can read.

Train yourself

What I hope to do as a teacher — and what I hope all teachers do in whatever field — is to teach their students to rely on their own judgement, use their heads, and thus develop their skills in independent thinking and action based on solid foundations.

Recipes are references or guides. At the stove, the cook controls the final product through taste, experience, preference and style. My friend Chef Ken calls it "the generic method." I have called it simply "understanding the basics."

I am sometimes concerned when I "talk food" with aspiring cooks and they describe some complicated pastries or a new dish using truffles and white wine that they have tried to make. Often they reveal that they have no idea why the sponge cake base turned out flat and rubbery or perhaps why ordinary mushrooms get slimy in their plastic wraps.

The baker, of course, must have a formula as does the scientist who concocts a brew over a Bunsen burner. The end result is what happens in the oven when heat causes certain elements or chemicals in the food to interact with each other. This must be precise in order to be controlled.

But, at the stove, the decision is the cook's. How tart, how sweet, how thick, how crisp, how rare — these are all the result of what cook's judgement. If the cook, however, needs the exact measurement of herb or liquid or a step-by-step direction for every dish each time, that cook never makes the wonderful leap to freedom from the printed word.

I got some interesting responses to a recent column in which I had recipes with amounts described "as much as you wish." Some readers loved it; some felt insecure. I still say, "Go for it. You're in charge. Don't be afraid. If you like it, it's good." Actually, much can be said for this philosophy in evaluating works of art. But, dear me, that's another ball game we must discuss another time.

The mail bag

Last week's mail brought a delightful letter from Kathryn H. who wants me to hunt down a special pudding for her. I'm trying, Kathryn. Keep tuned, and thank you for your very kind words.

Kathryn also had a problem with yams. For a recent pot luck dinner, she "bought 14 lbs. of yams...boiled them...peeled off the skins...and they were all black or brown inside. How can I keep them nice and orange?"

Dear Kathryn:

Your dark sweet potatoes could have been caused by several things. First, you may have bought a variety of the vegetable that does cook up into a dark mass. Secondly, you may have had a batch that froze — either before picking or after.

Sweet potatoes and yams are often interchanged both by name and in recipes. To explain the technical difference would take a whole column. Suffice it to say, they are basically from two different families of plants, but we often use either term. I identify yams as the smooth, dark red or purple-skinned ones and sweet potatos as the lighter, tougher-skinned vegetable.

The Sweet Potato Council says that the variety known as the Jewel will retain its vivid orange color when cooked. To be sure to ask your produce dealer which variety you are buying.

Sweet potatoes may be boiled in their skins as you did, or baked, peeled, sliced or fried. They may be roasted or even wrapped in foil and grilled over coals. Sweet potatoes can also be frozen cooked (and dipped into an acid mixture to keep from darkening) or prepared in the microwave in about 4 minutes.

I prefer mine baked, split and buttered, but sweet potatoes are marvelous steamed and garnished with herb sauces, so read on and thanks for writing.

Cheers, Olga B.

Herb butter sauce

In a small saucepan, combine 4 T. or so of butter, one or more crushed cloves of garlic, a sprinking of thyme, salt, and a dash of pepper. Heat until melted and blend well.

Yogurt herb sauce

In a small saucepan melt some butter, add chopped onion (as much as you wish!) and some minced garlic. Add about ¾ t. dill weed, and an equal amount of paprika, some salt and pepper. Cook until the onion is transluscent. Remove from heat and stir in ½ c. plain yogurt and a squeeze of lemon juice. Heat gently for about one minute.

Those lovely orange vegetables are a good source of vitamin A. One serving will supply over 100 percent of the recommended daily allowance (RDA) and has iron and some vitamin C besides. All this at about 140 calories a serving makes it a valuable food. The canned ones are OK for candying, but there are so many other tasty ways to cook them without all that sugared syrup. Sometime try cutting them as for French fries and baking them in the oven. Yummy yams.

Olga Bier is a teacher, author and home economist. Anyone with questions or suggestions for the column may reach her in care of the Times Journal, 1247 Solano Ave., Albany 94706.

Plaza, spoke against granting the permit. He said, "The median age of their customers is seven, clearly these are not candidates for shopping in the other plaza stores."

Bacon also said he feared vandalism if Chuck E. Cheese were permitted to remain open after other stores in the Plaza had closed.

Ned Robinson, lawyer for the Chicago-based Homart Corp., which owns El Cerrito Plaza, said "The issue is not Kirby's. The lease is about to expire, and Homart is of the opinion that it is time to revitalize the Plaza."

He was greeted with a chorus of boos from the audience, and shouts of "Go back to Chicago."

Siri rapped her gavel and told the audience, "Be pleasant, it's a hot night."

The Council stipulated that Chuck E.Cheese would have to close at 10 p.m. on weekdays, and at midnight on weekends. These are El Cerrito curfew hours.

The restaurant's lease will come up for annual review, and it must install bike racks if the police department decides they are necessary. Chuck E. Cheese was successful in winning approval to use the loading area in front of the restaurant before 11 a.m.

Speaker after speaker spoke of the value of Kirby's to El Cerrito. Phyllis Palazzari, a waitress there for 19 years said customers have been asking her, "What are we going to do when they take away our restaurant?"

After the meeting she said, "I can't believe the decision."

Gary Ruwet, sponsor of the petition to deny the permit, said after the meeting he was shocked by the decision. "People are just disregarded," he said.

Amidst cheers from the audience, Council member Spellmann made a motion that the permit be rejected. He said the 1300 people a day served by Kirby's made the restaurant an asset to the community. The motion was defeated 3 to 2. Spellman and Allen voted yes; Abelson, Collins and Siri voted no.

Farmers cuts rates on auto insurance for drivers between 30 and 60

We have rates 30% under standard rates for drivers between the ages of 30 and 60.

Here's a good reason for us. Farmers knows that these drivers tend to be older and more careful on the highway.

You're the drivers who have fewer accidents.

That's why Farmers created our 30/60 package auto policy. If you qualify, you could save substantially on your premiums.

Farmers Insurance Group is working constantly to keep the costs of insurance down, and the amount of protection up. And this 30/60 package auto policy is one way we do it. Why not ask me?

the cuff, but we acted honestly and openly."

Carroll Williams, the only board member who opposed closing schools, said the majority of the board acted without good reasons.

"Parents can't find the justifications the board indicated (for closing schools)," he said. "The economics and declining enrollment. They're trying their best to block the decision and have the board reconsider."

Administrators say they don't know exactly how much the suit will cost the district, but Zlokovich said it would cost "a bundle." One of the reasons the board voted to close schools was to help offset an expected $1 million deficit next year.

The John Muir suit is being handled by a team of half a dozen lawyers who are all John Muir parents or neighbors. The school also raised about $10,000 at a spring fair that could be used for legal costs.

Hillside parents are being represented by a San Francisco lawyer, Robert Rivkin. Parents and school [illegible] have raised about $5,000 to cover their legal costs.

In a related matter, Jackson said that the civil rights office of the U.S. Department of Education will [illegible] investigation of the school board's decision to close John Muir. Jackson and other parents had filed a complaint with the office, claiming that closing John Muir, one of the [illegible] tally accessible schools in the district, violated the rights of handicapped students to an appropriate public school [illegible]

By Oswald Jacoby and James Jacoby

Ely Culbertson invented the expression "wrecked on the rocks of distribution" to describe what happens to some rock-crusher hands.

Here we see Ely wrecked. East and West in a 1935 team match. He sat South and decided to try to deprive his vulnerable opponents of bidding space by his jump to four spades — not that he didn't expect that he might bring it in, giving his partner a major-suit ace and three-round diamond control.

The rest of the bidding is almost self-explanatory. East's bid of six clubs was an attempt to get Ely to bid six spades. East wanted to extract a bigger penalty than he expected against just five spades, and East was sure that Ely would not let his vulnerable opponents play in six clubs.

So poor East doubled, and as you can see, all East could score was his ace of trumps.

In 1932, matches were scored in total points, and Ely's score for making six spades doubled was 1210.

At the other table East decided to take the expected profit at five doubled. The score for five doubled making six was just 750 points, so Ely's net gain was 460 points.

Astrography

If your birthday is Wednesday, June 10:

Do not give up on things for which you have worked long and hard. They could come into fruition in the year ahead. Keep plugging along familiar lines.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)

Normally you are not disturbed by outside influences, but today you will be able to get more accomplished if you work in a quiet environment.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)

Involving yourself in new projects today will help refurbish your outlook. The more practical they are, the more successful you are apt to be.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)

Others may be overwhelmed by challenges today, but this is not likely to be true in your case. You'll welcome situations which test your mettle.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)

Critical developments can be dealt with successfully today if you keep your cool and use your common sense. Take time to deliberate.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23)

You're likely to be better at managing the affairs of others today than you will be at handling your own. However, this will work to your advantage.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22)

Where important decisions are concerned today, you're not apt to be wishy-washy. You'll know exactly where you stand and so will your associates.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21)

Put your precious hours to worthwhile uses today. If you fail to use your time productively, your inactivity could later invoke feelings of guilt.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)

When you step in and restore order to chaotic conditions created by others, all will be happy. The situation may arise.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19)

Although you may be reluctant to commit yourself today, once you do you won't be easily dissuaded from your course of action.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20)

Being restricted or staring at the same four walls could depress your spirits today. Plan activities which constantly keep you on the go.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)

The art of accumulating should work to your advantage today in material situations, as well as in other areas. Use your Midas touch.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)

Sometimes it's essential to focus on your personal interests. In order to advance your cause it may be necessary for you to do so today.

Green thumb burglars strike E.C.

EL CERRITO — To a police detective, a "Green Thumb" means more than someone with a talent for growing plants — it describes a type of burglar.

Detective Dan Bell of the El Cerrito Police said "Green Thumb" burglars — who surface every year about this time — have hit thrice during the past week in El Cerrito. The burglars wait until they see a resident doing yard work, then enter the victims' homes through the other side.

Such a burglar failed in his attempt to enter loot a home in the first block of Ramona Avenue recently, when he was surprised inside the house by the resident.

The would-be thief muttered something about looking for a nearby address and then fled on foot.

Bell noted "Green Thumb" burglars limit their thefts to small items such as cash and jewelry — items that can be concealed in pockets in case they are surprised, as in the Ramona Avenue case. They usually park their cars about a block from the home they are about to hit, he said.

French kids need homes

Host families are needed for French high school age students during July and/or August for three to four weeks.

Financial aid is available for participating families. Programs are available for American teenagers wanting homestays and intensive language study in France.

For further information call Ginnie Jed at 525-0557.
